OFFERS & FUNNELS

One offer, not three

The best offer decision we made this year was cutting two.

INSIDE

1 September: three things to sell

2 What the cheap one did

3 October: one offer

September: three things to sell

A cheaper ready-made setup, a fully custom system, and websites.

What the cheap one did

It anchored every conversation on price. And it wasn’t working for us.

October: one offer

A custom system built around how the business actually runs.

Tight budget? Shrink the phase

Not the price. And not a switch to a cheaper product.

One message everywhere

Ads, posts and the sales call all point at the same thing.

2026, IN ONE DECISION

Fewer offers, said clearly.

September	→	Three offers, three pitches
October	→	One custom system
Tight budget	→	Smaller first phase
Next	→	New offers, each with one job

Does each of your offers have a clear job?
